Facility Snapshot/Description

The West Texas Detention Facility is located in Sierra Blanca, Texas, approximately 85 miles southeast of El Paso, Texas. The facility is owned and operated by LaSalle Corrections [REDACTED]. It currently houses adult male and female U.S. Marshal Service detainees. There have been no ICE detainees in the facility since October 2019. When ICE detainees return, adult male and female detainees of all classification levels will be accepted.

The facility, constructed in 2004, is a compound of six buildings. The site is enclosed by two twelve-foot perimeter chain link fences equipped with razor ribbon rows on the top and bottom of the exterior fence and on the top of the interior fence. There is a perimeter road encircling the compound that is patrolled by an armed officer in a vehicle on a continuous but irregular schedule. The exterior doors of the buildings are alarmed, under camera surveillance, and controlled by central control officers. The entire perimeter is under monitored camera surveillance. The surveillance network, which consists of 124 cameras, offers monitoring into all housing units, common areas, and movement corridors. All movement in the facility is escorted.

When present, ICE detainees will be housed separate from non-ICE detainees in one or more of four housing units which are divided into eight separate dormitory compartments ranging in size from 83 to 105 beds. There is one special management unit (SMU - housing for administrative and disciplinary segregation status detainees). The SMU consists of 24 one-bed cells equipped with their own showers and wash basins. SMU detainees have their own outdoor recreation area.

Each of the general population detainee housing units has a dayroom area equipped with televisions, telephones, fixed table/chair units used for recreation and meals. The facility offers indoor and outdoor recreation.

Sanitation throughout the common areas of the facility could not be observed due to the remote nature of the inspection.
